Making Adelaide a Fantastic Place to Live

Recent conversations with numerous City residents and business people have made it clear that there are many common issues and concerns, including the need:

- for improved road and footpath maintenance;
- to focus on pedestrian safety at night with increased streetlighting;
- to plan practical cycling and scooter infrastructure;
- for aesthetic improvements such as streetscaping and more public art;
- for a rapid response to remove graffiti and deal with illegal dumping;
- to introduce the collection of recyclables and green waste for high-rise apartments
- to improve the City Connector bus route and service
- to invest in protecting and enhancing our precious parklands.

As one of your Central Ward Councillors, I will strive for positive outcomes in the things that matter to you.

Bringing People Back to the City

My objective in nominating as a Central Ward Councillor is to deliver to Adelaide the openness and transparency required for effective government while working collaboratively with state and federal governments.

I believe that for our City to thrive we must bring people back by:

- offering two hours free parking for shoppers at all Council carparks
- upgrading Hindley Street working with local businesses, residents and property owners
- ensuring the City is seen to be and actually is accessible by keeping roads open during events
- instituting a year-long program of events so that there is always something exciting happening across the CBD, particularly within Central Ward's dining and entertainment precincts

- continuing to support the Adelaide Economic Development Agency to bolster our City's various businesses, not allowing AEDA to be wound up
- keeping the Adelaide Central Market Authority in the hands of skills-based experts.

I need your support and especially your vote in this year's election to achieve these goals, further our shared prosperity and protect Adelaide's position as one of the world's most vibrant and livable cities.

This is Me

I launched Barossa Fine Foods with my wife Barbara just over 30 years ago, starting with a stall in the Adelaide Central Market.

Our family business has thrived and grown over the years. It now includes some of the most familiar and respected names in South Australia's food industry including Angelakis Bros. Seafood, Standom Smallgoods and The Cheesemonger.

My core value is to make the lives of others better through the things that I do.

I offer a wealth of business administration and retail experience, which I am keen to continue using for the benefit of our Central Ward community: both business and residential.

I'm frequently out and about in Central Ward, and welcome the chance to chat to people about issues that concern them and opportunities you see for improving our fabulous City.

Professional Involvement

- Adelaide City Council Area Councillor (2018-2022)
